Vol. XLV., No. 1,160.

NEW YORK: SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1901.

PRICE TEN CENTS.

It was like meeting a friend in a strange city to see the familiar fence posters of William Gillette and May Irwin along the Boston

Gillette and May Irwin along the Boston streets as they were last week.

They were the only real friendly things in town. I should imagine that a Boston audience would chill the very marrow in the bones of actors appearing there. It is the coldest place this side of the North Pole.

It is a hoodoo city to the Matinee Girl, who is always caught in a blizzard there. I have a little way of leaving New York in a tailor gown with a bunch of violets and a chiffon collarette and arriving in the Massachusetts capital to find the cabs on runners, snow on the ground and car drivers done up in fur coats and the mercury frozen in the thermometers.

in for coats and the mercury frezen in the thermometers.

I often wonder if New York affects people with the inhospitable feeling of unwelcome that Boston gives one? Philadelphia and Washington never make you feel that way. Washington's atmosphere is positively alluring and you can't go through a hotel corridor without getting a warm, cheery smile from according to constressmin.

washington's atmosphere is positively alluring and you can't go through a hotel corridor without getting a warm, cheery smile from some senator or congressman.

Thiladelphia gives you the impression that there is a great deal going on there that don't get in the papers. If you arrive at midnight you find the orchestra playing at the Walton and are likely to have cards sent up to your room up to I A. M.

In fact, I recollect getting there once at this hour and the band was playing a waltz and it seemed the gayest place I had ever struck. There was a tap at the door, and expecting a bell boy or a chambermaid I said "Who is it?" gently, like that.

For if it's a chambermaid of course she can come in, but if it's a boy you hold the door on a two-inch crack and expect him to get a foot wide ice water pitcher through it.

But this time a voice replied pleasantly. "Me," and pecking out I recognized an old college chum who attended a co-educational university with me years ago.

"Well," I said; "How did you get up here? Why didn't you send up your card?"

"I saw your name on the register, and it was so late I thought I'd just run up."

"Well, you can just run down again." I said, "and come around at breakfast time."

He explained in the morning with a little houteur that it was considered the proper thing in Philadelphia to drop in and see a friend on arriving in the town, and I asked him if the Philadelphia to drop in and see a friend on arriving in the town, and I asked him if the Philadelphia to drop in and see a friend on arriving in the town, and I asked him if the Philadelphia to drop in and see a friend on arriving in the town, and I asked him if the Philadelphia to drop in and see a friend on arriving in the town, and I asked him if the Philadelphia was a friendly, unconventional sort of place. But Boston gives me a chill.

Last week on arriving there and finding the usual change of temperature which made New York seem like a Winter resort in comparison, I was shown with chattering teeth into a beautiful, luxurious room, and the first thing my eyes fell upon was a picture of Oliver Cromwell framed in black clony. Fancy Oliver Cromwell! You remember the face, I suppose? It's one of those things that you can't forget. And framed in chony! Well, this was depressing enough, but the atmosphere of the room was like a cold storage house.

"Shall I turn on the steam?" asked the

Shall I turn on the steam?" asked the boy.

"I should," I replied. "And throw a hand-kerchief over that face or turn it to the wall or something, please."

He turned on the radiator, but it was one of the kind that didn't radiate. I froze quietly for half an hour waiting to hear it gurgle, and then I rang and asked for my half.

when they heard the trouble they said they would build a fire on the hearth. Then a porter came in with a lot of ornate logs and fixed them and lit paper under them, but they only steamed. Gradually they began to smoke; but the smoke at least was warm, so I sat there in the mist and felt as though I were living in an Ibsen play. He is very fond of those cloudy effects.

By and by there was excitement in the corridor and knocks on the door and I orened it and found negligee ladies there.

"We smelled smoke," they said; "is there a fire in here?"

a fire in here? "No." I rep "No," I replied, "there is not. That is just what's the matter. I might endure thiver Cromwell in a decently heated room, but I refuse to stand for him on ice."

They looked at me in a shocked, scared way.

They looked at me in a shocked, scared way.

They booked at me in a shocked, seared way.

They dodn't seem to gather who Oliver Cromwell was and dedn't exactly understand about his being there. I suppose,

But at all events. Easton is the only city that I was not only force out of, but smoked out of, and I am secry for the actors who have to face the Eostor andeexes.

That is why, when people ask me how I like Boston, I always reply that I think it a quaint town. "Quaint," like "charming, is a word you can take any way you like, but "quaint" is newer, so I use it.

We have become so thoroughly accustomed to queer French farces at the Madison Square

Theatre that it is almost startling to find Widle Collier there in a lively, amusing play like On the Quiet.

I never go in through that queer switched off doorway but I expect to see Fritz Williams envorting in pajamus or making himself utterly ridiculous; not that he is ridiculous by nature, like Oris Harlan, but he simply has to. It's in the day's work.

And Isabel Irving trying to not a devilish French woman with seventeen lovers and looking all the time like an angel on a Christmas card.

At the Florodora matinee a week ago, there was an innovation. During an intermission the orchestra played selections from the opera, and when the "Tell me, Pretty Maiden" number was reached the audience began to hum the tune. By degrees the hum developed into a chorus and finally the entire house was singing the melody gayly in time to the music. This song is certainly one of the prettiest things to see and to hear that we have had in an age. It never tires one and the members of the sextet appear to enjoy it just as much as their listeners and auditors.

When the Matinee Girl first saw this opera during the first weeks of its production in New York, she noted the eleverness of the young people who sang this song so prettily. They were all somewhat amatteurish, and strangely enough, in this particular instance it was an added charm. Since then, Joe Walsh, one of the dapper clerks, who is the happy possessor of a splendid voice, has moved up to a real part in The Burgomaster, where he has more opportunities for acting and singing than those afforded him in the Casino's popular opera.

In fact, since the first night the pretty

In those anorded him in the vasmo's popular opera.

In fact, since the first night the pretty maidens and the clerks have changed their individuality quite often with the exception of Margaret Walker, who leads the young women still, and one or two of the young men whose success has given them a confidence which they lacked at first.

There are any number of pretty girls in which they lacked at first.

There are any number of pretty girls in the chorus of Florodora who are prepared to go on as pretty maidens at a moment's notice in case the originals do not show up.

They have eaught the town, and it is a hard old town to catch.' They say the bathtubs in their flats are full of orchids all the time. Wouldn't that make you think? Just to go on and sing a little song and bob your head? And orchids five dollars apiece.

THE MATINEE GIRL.

LA SHELLE'S THEATRE.

Kirk La Shelle closed contracts last week for the erection of his theatre at the corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh Street, which will be called the Colonial and will be opened within a year. The Central Realty Bond and Trust Company will turn the property over to Mr. La Shelle as soon as the work of building is under way. The land cost $200,000 and the building will cost $500,000.

SHYTH SIGNS NEW STARS.

W. G. Smyth, whose management of William Collier will terminate at the end of this season, last week signed contracts with R. D. MacLean and Odette Tyler to star them next season in a repertoire consisting of King John, Coriolanus, and The School for Scandal. Special and elaborate productions will be made of each play and a strong company engaged.

Harry Gwynette, for A Mormon Wife.

Louis Van Wiethoff and William Adams, with Whitney and Knowles' Quo Vadis (Wostern).

Mary Hampton, for the leading female role in Hu

Pearle Hight, as Hossy, A Texas Steer.

There that it is almost startling to find will be Collier there in a lively, amusing play like the the Quiet.

I never go in through that queer switched of doorway but I expect to see Frizz Williams covering in pajamas or making himself utterly riductions: not that he is riductions by fourne. He there was a minute to be consumed to the seed of the covering the covers and booking all the time like an angel on a Christmas card.

Fritz Williams and Isabel Irwing always remind me of the babes in the wood or the princes in the tower, or any of those his covery on the princes in the tower, or any of those his voice young characters that were always up at the played in French forces, and what I should like to see magazine articles, written by both of them, or 'Roles that have played in French farces, and what I have played in French farce and the start I prophesy, is going to develop into another Nat Goodwin II have seen him most energy afternoon, to study his conception of a singed man would feel?

But the Collier play is a decided relief from the will be worth a fortune to him when he gets into more important comedy parts.

There's nothing I like better than giving out bright futures, and in this case Williamhas an individuality that no actor even approaches, and individuality that no actor even approaches, an

At the Opera there has been produced Astarte, the mythological opera by Louis de Cammon and Navier Lerous. First night enthusians and Navier Lerous. First night enthusians are this work a futtering reception, yet cettain application with the content of the art, and is expert in the technique of composition and orchestration. He is original, too, save for the influence of the Wagnerian school, that is frequently evident in the score of Astarté. But he seems not to be musically fluent—that is, the stream of his composition is narrow, shader methods feeding, for delicate coloring. One finds a constant noisiness and resonance, a sameness of thought, a bluntness of appreciation. This is taking the score as a whole—in spots it is admirable, for the rest it aims high and falls short. The theme chosen by M. de Gramont can scarcely be commonded. True, it is my the content of the content fact, it is a physiological treatise rather than a play.

One expected première will not take place for a time, at any rate. Décadence, Albert Guinon's drama, that Rejane was about to do at the Vaudeville, has been stopped by the Minister of Fine Arts. It seems that M. Guinon rapped the degenerate French nobility none too gently, and the originals of some of the characters, it is said, would have been recognized readily. The story was of the marriage of the daughter of a penniless nobleman with a rich Jewish merchant. Rumor has it that bécadence will go on anon, but Manager Forel is busy rehearsing La anon, but Manager Forel is busy rehearsing La Petite Marquise as a substitute for the present. The Managing Committee of the Comédie-Française stirred up a rumpus among the "pensionnaires" when it voted not to elect new "sociétaires" to succeed Mile. Marsy and M. Worms. Their shares are to be divided among other "sociétaires," whose number will remain as at present. Much complaint from the "pensionnaires," but nothing can be done to mend matters.

The Queen's Beath Affects Bu Amsteurs in The Geister

(Special Correspondence of The Mirror)

Kingston, Feb. 23.

Owing to the Queen's death theatrical matters here were at a standstill for some time. The coming of the Lambardi Opera Company was the first since the sad event. The company was the first since the sad event. The company was the first since the sad event. The company was the first since the sad event. The company was the first since the sad event. The company was the first since the sad event. The company was fall to the first season was a short one, the operas produced being La Traviata, La Forza del Destino and Carmen. The first two were poorly attended, but Carmen drew a good house. The company was fair but needed strengthening. They left for Cuba Feb. 11.

The Geisha was produced for the first time here Feb. 19, by The Kingston Operatic Society. Mrs. Lewis, president; Jean Shaefer, manager and Montgomery Irving, stage-manager. All the scenery and costumes were made for the occasion. O Mimosa San was played by Miss L. Lyman. of Philadelphia, who was well received. Xicolina Soutar, as Juliette; Miss B. Francis, as Lady c'onstance Wynne; Mrs. D. Levey, Hilda Soutar, and Miss Kilburn, all did well. Mrs. Louis Lewis, Imm Barrow, Leta Earrow, and Etta Soutar were pretty Geisha girls. Dr. Ragg as Wun-Hi, made a great hit. F. Lynch, as Captain Fairfax, was in good voice and acted well. The other officers were L. Lewis, Arthur Morrison, as the Marquis Imarialso won much favor. Mention is also due Mr. Delgado and the Misses Follock Smith, and Soutar. By request the opera will be repeated Feb. 26.

Theatres Recover from Carnival Depression New Opera Company Makes a Hit.

(Special Correspondence of The Mirror.)

HAVANA, Cuba, March 6

The Carnival season, which is nearing its end has had a tendency to keep people from the theatres, owing to the many other amusements of this time. During the past two weeks, however, the presence of excursionists has caused the theatres to play to large business. The Berriel French Opera company canceled its engagement at the Tacon, and the Tomba Opera company, that recently began its run at the Payret, having no opposition. Is playing to good audiences. The company is an agreeable surprise, and the operas so far sung have been rendered in a satisfactory manner. Audran's operated in a satisfactory manner. Audran's operated in a satisfactory manner. Audran's operated in Enstleana and II Pagliacci. Señoritas Lafin and Turconi Bruni, the prima donnas have had ample opportunity to display their beautiful voices and to win the favor of their nudlences. Señor Mayeroni sines in a finished manner every part allotted to him.

The Tacon remains dark to theatricals, having been given over to masked balls during the carnival. Removem and bis company are announced to come to the Tocon shortly.

There have been no new productions at the Albisu recently. Essaille Saler, a newcomer to the stock company, is favorably received. The Larn centinues closed while the Albambra is doing a good business. The plays presented are El-Castillo de Altures. La Criada Respondent and Parn Tacos Jugadores. Giotine, an American serpentine dañeer, began an engagement at this hause last week.

The Cuba continues to de large business. New faces are Freddic Clark, Olive Weslake, and Hazel Half.

A Lively Season Promised-Drama, Opera and Vaudeville-The Orpheum Leased. (Special Correspondence of The Micror.)

(Special Correspondence of The Micror.)

Hoxocutt, Feb. 18

The present indications are that Honolulu will have more than its usual share of comedy drama, opera and vandwille this Spring and Summer. Aside from the attractions mentioned in my last letter, recent advices are to the effect that the Flying Jordans who appeared here several years ago, will give a vandeville tent show during March.

James Love, at one time manager of Janet Walderf and later of Nance O'Neil, is organizing an opera company, with which he intends touring the Orient, taking Vindivostok to the North and going Westward as far as India. Josephine Stanton, of the Boston Lyries, is to head the company. Honolulu will be their first stop and the company will arrive here probably a few days after Nance O'Neil.

Antonia Polones may sing in this city. She is booked to sail for Australia on the Ventura, that arrives here March 12.

Tolman's Little Time, a comedy, was presented at the Orcheum, Feb. 9 and 16, by the Honolulu Demartic Club to ampreciative houses This club is made up principally of professionals who came to this beach with various companies and, becoming infatunted with the climate, resolved to make Honolulu their home.

Joe Chem formerly manager of the Orcheum company, who operated the Cupheum Feb. 2 and will conduct it hereafter.

The Wilson Theatre Co. opened a week's engagement February 25, 8, E. O., and did a phenomenal business during the entire-engagement. The company gave such satisfaction that contracts were signed for next season after two performances. Will not publish the receipts as you would not believe business to that amount could be done in a town of this size. Ask E. C. Wilson and the Managers of the following companies what they think of Waynesburg: Nathan Haie, The Christian, An American Gentleman, and Chattanoga. Among the attractions booked for this Spring are: Mildred Holland, Jefferson's Elp Van Winkle, Eaverly's Mastodon Minstreis, White's Fanst, A kun on the Bank, and An American Girl.

Our Press Chab has recently exploited a couple of entertainers whose names might find a piace in the soubrette album. They are Boiling Arthur Johnson, lecturer, and W. Stamps Cherry, African explorer.

Stuart Rebson began his second and farewell week at the Grand Opera House last evening with a very creditable revival of She Stoops to Conquer, in which he assumes his old role of Tony Lumpkin. Mr. Robson, by the way, celebrated his sixty-fifth anniversary March 4 and received a congratulatory jingle from his friends of the Lambs.

A Grand Eapids correspondent sends me the programme of an amateur recital in which Birdie Bear figures as doing a piano solo stunt called "The Storm." (I'll bet her auditors were glid she didn't have an umbrella.)

Josephine Ludwig came up from St. Louis to afternate Artive, with Mand Lillian Beeri, in the revival of The Bohemian Girl by the Custle Square Opera Company at the Studebaker this week. Joseph Sheehan is also in the cast and Winfred Goff makes his first appearance. Frank Moulan made one of his buggest hits as Eunthorne in Fatience last week. He will have Daniels part in The Wizard of the Nile next week.

"Punch" Wheeler tells me that he is interested in a new fire proof hotel of staff, to be built near the Buffalo Exposition grounds. He claims that its advantage is that a man who stays out late at nights and forgets his night-key can get it with a cra-opener. "Punch" is a Buffalo, by the way. He turns down people who ask for passes with his left hand.

J. C. Williamson, the Australian manager, passed through here last week ca route to London, on the look out for attractions.

At the Bearbourn this week the stock company is presenting Why Smith Left Home, with Louise Rial in Mrs. Yeamans' original part.

The stage will be elevated at the Alhambra this week, when Black Patti's Troubadours will devote the last three nights to a prize cake walk, open to all comers.

Hearts of Oak is the bill this week at the Academy of Music, while at the Bijou The Span of Life is the attraction.

The stock company at the new Victoria this week is giving The Banker's Daughter, with Albert Andras and May Hosmer in the leading roles.

What Hubbites are Seeing—Tech. Boys to Sing the Grand Duke—Under Two Flags. (Special to The Mirror.)

(Special to The Herox.)

(Special to The Herox.)

To-night's chief novelty is the return of an old favorite—A Runaway Girl—at the Boston, and although the cast is considerably different from that which was last seen here, there is little doubt of the success of the engagement. Arthur Bunn has succeeded James T. Powers as Flipper, and he is little, but oh my! He is a prime favorite here, although his recent engagements have been in vaudeville. Paula Edwardes is again here as Carmelita, her original character, which she plays far better than any one that has ever had the part. Ethel Jackson, who alternated the title-role with Virginia Earle the first senson, is welcomed back to the part.

Boston sees Under Two Flags early and does not have to wait for the Flaul Potter dramatization. The stock company at the Castle Square gave a spectacular production of the Edward Elmer version to-night and made a great popular hit. The chief honors were won by Lillian Lawrence, who played Cigarette and showed her great versatility by the complete transition from Frou Frou. The horseback ride was given with excellent effect. It was a queer coincidence of name that Princess Corona should be played by Corona Riccardo.

The Grand Opera House has the first drama dealing with war in the Philippines that Boston has yet seen. This is Across the Pacific, and Harry Clay Blancy has the principal character. Willie Live. The company is a good one for this class of play and the war effects were given with a realism that was quite thrilling.

Charles. Miss Crosman noticed him, though the was stenling Mistress Neil, and was about to send out in front to have the "person" ejected, when Bouckault told her who we were. The next day I mailed Bouckault told her who we were. The next day I mailed Bouckault the sketch to prove it.

Walter Jones, the comedian, who has been quite ill here, has recovered, but his wife has fallen ill now.

The Russian Nihilist, by Joseph Latimer, is being presented by the stock company at the new Yiddish theatre.

Harry Gilfoli will be seen in A Trip to Chinatoun at the Great Northern next week, and the underline at the Alhambra is Elmer E. Vance's Treasure Island.

A friend writes me from Palm Beach, Florida, with the aid of a cane, and that the gay-st golfer in the place is the prospective bridegroom. Wille Jefferson, brother of Tom.

Harry Corson Clarke is here at the Auditorium for a few weeks, reorganizing his company.

Will S. Rising passed through here yesterday. One of the architects interested in the Pearsborn Theatre has written a romantic play called Greater than King, which the stock company at the Bould Hollis and has sorred a great popular hit. Mr. de Angelis has another congenial character, and the others of the company give excellent support. This is the last week.

May levin is in her linal week at the Museum and Madge Smith, Aftorney, continues to pack the choice at each performance. Joseph Sparks that house will produce next Sunday. I do not see why an architect sinterested in the Pearsborn Theatre has written a romantic play called Greater than King, which the stock company at the Bould Welker, Charles buggan, Hilda Hollis and incident of his play. The Honest Elacksmith, thouse at each performance. Joseph Sparks the choice at ach performance of Reformer. Frank Hall, for participating in a sparting exhibition, which is an incident of his play. The Honest Elacksmith its press agent was called to the witness chair and told the story of the play. I was glad to hear the narrative, because I had seen the play and London, the cast being the present one, with one or two minor changes.

Henry Miller is in his last week at the Park with Richard Savage, and the critics have had all sorts of nice things to say about his work. Florence Rockwell, too, has made one of the great hits of the engagement and is more of a favorite here than ever. Mrs. Bouelcault and Jennie Eustace also have been received with unusual heartiness.

feather in their caps for the enterprise which they are showing in their theatricules this senson. They are going to give a dilbert and Sullivan opera for the first time on this side of the Atlantic, thus making a step far ahead of the amateurs from Harvard and the other colleges. It a combination of circumstances The Grand Duke has never been played in America, and so it would not be surprising if several managers should make their way to Boston to see this production under the direction of Mrs. Janet Edmonston Walker, who, by the way, was the first Phyllis in Iolanthe that Boston saw. The Fech theatricals have always been among the best of the year.

Henry Norman caught such r severe cold in the storm blockade that delayed the Jefferson de Angelis company that he lost neveral performances inst week.

Last week was a lively one between newspapers and theatres, and at least three houses and two papers had little encounters in the course of the week.

Ethel Jackson, who is in A Runaway Girl at the Boston, has been engaged for The Messenger Boy next season.

Ecfore the Supreme Court last week arguments were heard in the case of Frances Prake against Edilin H. Allen and others. This was an action for alleged breach of a contract by the defendants to employ Miss Brake at their theatre for thirty five weeks in 1898-99 at $100 a week. She got a verdict in the Superior Court, and the defendants excepted to certain evidence and to a refusal to give an instruction looking to the mitigation of damages.

Mand Poole, who is at the Tremont with Jefferson de Angelis, was arrested after the matinee. March 6, and would have had to go to the Charles Street juli if bondsmen had not been found. She is the first woman ever arrested in a civil suit in this city, but she may not enjoy that distinction. The suit was brought by William Gray Erooks, a well-known lawyer and member of the famous Brooks family, who wants the return of Jewelry walued at several thousands of dollars which he gave to Miss Poole when they were engaged to be married. She met him here two years ago when she was playing with Francis Wilson, and he was devoted in his attention. She considers that the jewels are her property. The case will not come up in the courts before next April. Practically every paper in Boston rang the changes on "I Wants bem Presents Eack" in the headlines of the stories.

Stories.

Elliote Enneking's Boston friends have been delighted to hear of the success which she made as Chrystal in Hearts of Onk. She took the role on short notice in the West owing to the illness of Miss Whiteford, the leading woman. She played it in Pittsburg, Cleveland and Toledo. In the latter city she had a severe fall on the stage and was out of the cast for a week. She has now returned to duty and will play out the season.

THE devices of managers committed to the methods natural to the commercializing of the stage are attracting wide attention as comments from authoritative newspapers republished in THE MIRROR show.

One of the most striking development of the prevailing system is the manufacture of "stars." Of course there are few that will blame the superficially popular young man of meagre experience or the handsome young woman who may have been graduated but yesterday from a dramatic school for accepting fortune at its apparent flood and making the most of the seeming complaisance of managers that force such young persons ahead of their artistic growth for selfish reasons.

The managers who "star" young players prematurely care nothing for the ar tistic futures of such players. The managers are "showmen" with the mercantile idea. They believe that pretense with the public stands for much, and they make pretentious efforts in which the young man or the young woman that figures as a star is but an instrument. The young player is projected out of natural focus and in advance of natural growth with the idea that elaborate accessories will hide the real nature of the enterprise; and beyond this the manager knows that the young player can be handled with greater ease, and that the satisfaction of crude ambition and vanity will permit the manager to absorb the lion's share of profit.

But it is with dramatic art as it is with all other art. Reaction against the fictitious and the meretricious is inevitable. be temper, and his score on the target of And the results of untimely "starring" popular and professional error shows a upon the young player fooled to the top of his or her bent by specious and selfish management is bound to be deplorable. The young player is apt to form a false idea of his or her actual importance in the economy of the theatre, and fondly and foolishly to imagine that the hard work that others find necessary for success has by some favorable dispensation been eliminated in his or her case. To cultivate this erroneous idea is to join the hands of vanity and indolence, and the victim, inseed of riding on a special wave of prosperity to the harbor of fame, sooner or later comes to artistic shipwreck.

But little different from the premature "star" is the "star" in whose preparation another method, eventually quite as fatal, first actor in a part. There is no doubt "large of the subject of the player space cannestly in be.

Forrest, have you heard the news from Eng. Sonit is an actor in the very high percentage of bullseyes.

As Mr. Ayres, besides being a critic of acting a mong other things, is an actor himself, and presumably is himself afflict. How for the death, in actor of the theorething with enotion, he exclaimed: "Macready dead," repented with force things, is an actor himself, and presumably is himself afflict. How for the with something of that vanity the foregoing particular exudation of which he characterizes as "nauseous," this specific by referce to his corrective argument would seem to be a little unkind, as well as a little on the verge of the subject kernel.

The Mirnor, nevertheless, holds mainly with Mr. Ayres in this matter. The actor is not the "creator" of a character unterestive to praise, and of the pain it causes him to have laws and urged that no stone be left unterestive to praise, and of the players that they are created of the pain it causes him to have laws and urged that no stone be left unterestive to praise, and of the players that they are created actor to the pain it causes him to the "creator" of a character unterestive the pain it causes him to have laws and urged that no stone another method, eventually quite as fatal, is employed. This second sort of "star" is manufactured with greater care, but the trade-mark is ineradicable. A clever, persistent and indefatigable master of theatrical craft takes a man or a woman that can be taught to speak the lines of a part so as to produce certain effects, and to do certain things in keeping with the lines. acrobatics. But it is wenderful to witness! Seemingly are so veritable that even in New York they have deceived the crisical dect for the moment. Yet a man or a wittes the play in which it appears.

It may be asserted, however, that while the foregoing statement is true in general step or two on a definite road is a traveler.

Caston Deschamps, literary critic of the Paris Tempe, ended his series of lectures at Sanders' Theatre, Cambridge, Mass., last week. On March 16 he spoke on "The Heroic Drama," that had its beginning. M. Deschamps said, in the songs of the windering troubadours of the middle ages, application, there is something to be said.

Take the most accomplished of the "stars" of this sort, of whom there are several, and in a round of even commonplace characters without assistance they would be as unworked clay. Such a player is like an effigy hewn from insensate stuff. and the only credit due for the performance of such a one should go to the person that fashions the raw material.

of but one or two persons that have succeeded notably as actors without infinite preliminary work. One of these was GAR-RICK, of whom it is not necessary to say that his intelligence was phenomenal, or that he would have succeeded in almost fail of perfect or ideal embodiment. any walk of life. To realize the labor that introduced success to CHARLOTTE CUSH-MAN OF EDWIN FORREST, great figures in their day, would frighten many a novice from a stage career. And no great player of to-day of any nation can say that his or her eminence is the result of anything more certainly than of hard work in a multitude of parts. Sir HENRY IRVING played a thousand roles before he was recognized in London as a great actor. And no enduring fame can come to the player expediently projected or superficially trained or parroted and specially molded for a single part unless that player industriously builds anew on a basis of original intelligence, and traverses that dramatic labyrinth that enforces varied experience and breathes artistic diversity.

" CREATION."

In a new book by ALFRED AYRES, entitled Some Ill-Used Words," advance sheets of which The Mirror has been privileged to see, that orthoepical and verbal authority, in the vigorous style for which he has become noted, handles among others one solecism of which many members of the dramatic profession are steadily guilty. Using as a text a paragraph stating that The leading part of TIMMENDORF will be created by the leading comedian of the Living Place Theatre, GUSTAV VOX SEYF-FERTITZ "-the paragraph evidently having been taken from a daily newspaper Mr. Ayres says, with some acerbity:

We have here an example of a nauseous exuda tion of the vanity of the player folk that occasionally gets into print. If Herr vox Seveis the author of the play of which TIMMENDOUF is a part? Commonly, very little discretion is allowed these "creators" of parts. They must, as a rule, play as author and stage-manager direct. THE DEAMATIC MERROR never uses create as it is used in the sentence above; it uses originute, which, however, is not very much better, since there is little difference in the signification of the two words. Until recently, an actor that was first to play a part was said to be the original so and so. Formers, for example, was aid to be the original JACK CADE. To express the thought absolutely, we should have to use the locution, the first to play.

Mr. Ayres, in his peculiar enthusiasms, sometimes wields a sledge when a simple hammer of ordinary size would accomplish his purpose. His process differs somewhat from that of breaking a butterfly on the wheel, although his energy sometimes is out of proportion to the task he sets himself at. Something of his fame, perhaps, however, is due to his resounding method, and it may be said of him that, although he directs fierce blows at things that more moderate effort would correct, his aim never is affected by what would seem to erroneous designation of the work of a first actor in a part. There is no doubt that it has been and often is used by actors in a spirit of vanity, just as flattering words in the terminology of any art—whether the words are properly used or not—are fondly employed by those that practice the art. Calling an actor that first appears in a part the "creator" of the part may have had its origin in the writing of some well-meaning but ignorant critic; but as to its quick adoption by the profession there can be no question. It is not only erroneous—it is absurd. An actor im—others actor in a part is absurd. An actor im—others actor in a part the "creator" of the present time. Puring the evening songs were sung and reclinations given by Jack Lester, Bertram Godfrey, Magnetin P. Banta.

An ong these pose carnestly in behalf of the piays of flauptmann and the other authors of the modern German school. These palys, he phophesied, will some day find more favor on the American stage than they do at the present time.

There is in all dramatic history record But in all essentials, in the cases of notable characters, the author is the creator; and in the greater characters of the dramaparticularly those of Shakespeare-this is so patent a fact that the most gifted of actors always have failed and always will

THE ACTORS' ORDER CELEBRATION

On Sunday evening the Edwin Forrest Lodge, Actors' order of Friendship, celebrated the ninety-fifth anniversary of the birth of the great tragedian whose name it bears, in the home of the organization in Forty-seventh Street. From eight o'clock until after midnight the rooms were througed with members and their guests, numbering upward of a hundred; and, as is the custom at all social gatherings held by the outer, congeniality and informality dominated the occasion. During the evening nearly every one of the representative men present contributed to the entertainment, and altogether it was one of the pleasantest affairs of its kind in the history of the lodge.

There was an added, and, perhaps, a melancholy, interest in the event, in so much as it was the last birthday celebration that the lodge will hold in its present quarters. For seven years the house in Forty seventh Street has been the home of the society. Many new members have been initiated there; many kindly and charitable plans have been discussed within its walls; many times have the brothers gathered there to make merry, and upon other occasions they have come together there to pay their last tribute of friendship to one of their number who has passed away. The new Colonial Theatre will soon be erected upon the property now occupied by the house, and its stage will probably cover the ground now inclosed by the four walls of the present building. The celebration on Sunday night was a fitting farewell of the lodge to its home.

President Milton Nobles, who presided, expressed in manner as well as in words the scent.

night was a fitting farewell of the lodge to its home.

President Milton Nobles, who presided, expressed in manner as well as in words the sentiment of the occasion. He was in his happiest mood, and was, indeed, an ideal presiding officer. Each speaker was introduced by him in most graceful fashion, and his own impromptu speeches were among the most entertaining of the evening. Naturally and appropriately, many anecdotes of Edwin Forrest were related by one and another of the speakers. Mr. Nobles spoke of the eminent tragedian's vast human sympathy as he had seen it displayed when playing in Mr. Forrest's support, in the closing scene of Virginius: and he also told a number of stories that proved Mr. Forrest's kindness of feeling toward young and nervous players.

The chief guest of the evening, whom every man present delighted to honor, was James Booth Roberts, the oldest American actor, and a member of Shakespeare Lodge, of Philadelphia. Mr. Roberts made a delightful, characteristic address, in which he compared the old days of the drama with the new, and at the close of the evening he recited, with marvelous force and brilliancy, two familiar poems—"Asleep at the Switch and "The Benediction."

Mnylon Pickering, president of the Philadelphia lodge, delivered, in a genial little speech, the greetings of the parent lodge to the Edwin Forrest Lodge. These two lodges constitute the entire body of the Actors Order of Friendship.

F. F. Mackay, whose fame as a polished impromptu speaker has long been abreast of his fame as an actor, called attention to the interesting and hitherto unpublished fact that the late Colonel Richard Penn Smith, whose estate on Staten Island has been purchased for the site of the Actors Fund Home, was in his early years a dramatist, and one of his plays was produced by Edwin Forrest, in Philadelphia. Mr. Mackay told two unfamiliar anecdotes of Mr. Forrest—one illustrative of his sense of humor, the other of his justice. "It fell to my lot," said Mr. Mackay, "to be one of two players selected to carry Mr. Forrest from center stage to the wings in the course of action of one of the plays presented by him during an engagement in Boston. My fellow bearer was not a strong man, and I, though muscular, was a stripling in appearance. Mr. Forrest had his doubts of our ability to carry him. However, on the night, I got a firm grip on the great tragedian—great physically as well as artistically—and bore him successfully off stage. When we got safely in the wings Mr. Forrest looked me up and down, with an anused smile, and exclaimed. "By Heaven, that's what I call heavy business!"

"During the closing years of his career." continued the speaker, "Mr. Forrest was so weak at times that to escape the exertion of going to his dressing room between scenes, he used to sit in the wings, and, when the action of the play permitted, he invited me to sit and chat with him. One evening I said to him: "Mr. Forrest, have you heard the news from England?" No, said he, "what is it? "Macready, said I. is dead!" "Macready dead, repeated Mr. Forrest thoughtfully, and then, in a voice received to the second of the results of the re

The poisy and assertive method of the putent medicine quack finds a parable in some of , our theatre advertisements. Charles Frobman is the vulgarest of the offenders in this line, which is a relic, perhaps, of his apprenticeship as a negro minstrel boomer.

Not long ago his announcements characterized one of his plays as "bully;" later he proclaimed another a "ripping success," and now he placards To Have and to Hold as a "whooping success." On Sunday he resorted once more to the asinine device of a personal indorsement of the same play, which ran thus: CHARLES FROHMAN SAYS:

"I have rarely witnessed a performance that gave such great satisfaction, with its human love story, its enormous production, its beautiful stage pictures, its great performance and its delightful sentiment woven around the early history of our country; nor an audience that re-ceived with such delight its unexpected situations and its great effects."

It may be true that the manager saw his owe production with satisfaction and delight, but why does he place himself on a pedestal of grotesque personal exploitation at 50 cents a line, unless it be that he is suffering from expensive delusions of self-importance?

Nobody cares a fig what Charles Frohman's opinions are of his own productions. As a matter of fact, judging from their general tenor, they would be better unknown and unpublished. Presumably he indorses whatever he puts on the stage, and his assumption of chortling glee at results is a ridiculous exhibition of one of the most conspicuous and least praiseworthy characteristics of the inflated little man.

A well known Western journalist writes: "Why can the cream of the vaudeville profession not only 'get together,' but also put up a successful fight for their rights; while the 'tegatimate' actors are pusillanimous cravens, personally chating under the thralldom of their virtual enslavement while they publicly glory in their chains as if these were budges of honor and evidences of superiority? Why do they give themselves airs because they are an unorganized mob and not a 'labor union?'

The vandeville profession have accepted leaders who are stanch and true, and the rank and file have followed them faithfully. Although more than a thousand of them have been involved in the battle there have been virtually no deserters or traitors, and although their task, for obvious reasons, was more formidable than that which confronted and still confronts the dramatic stars they were not dannited.

The inquiries formulated by the journalist whose letter I have quoted can be answered best, I thick, by such experts as Richard Mansfield, Francis Wilson, N. C. Goodwin, Wil fiam Gillette, Joseph Jefferson, William H. Crane, and other prominent stars.

k regarding a photographer who the opera is reported to carry on as a side issue the business of making audiences for theatres that need them. Mr. Pach says:

"Years ago I used to send out a good manybunches of tickets as a personal favor to certain managers. This was for their benefit, not I sent them out to my friends and my friends' friends, and if I had now what I spent on messengers and car fares I should have a nice little sum to invest. There never was a time when this matter was not a source of expense to me, and there is no truth in the statement that any person or persons paid me. "You will readily understand how in my business one can have a large list of personal friends to whom the receipt of a pair of seats when a play has *fallen down * is very acceptaide, and they are used as a matter of course. I have seen the time when this matter has been a positive nuisance, but rather than displease the manager I undertook to do as he asked and kept up appearances. The return to me was in the business that accrued to my firm from both sides, and as I look back at it now it was not worth the candle and I would not do it again."

Sarah Bernhardt's alligator hunt in New Orleans must have been as exciting as a chase

The alligator will no doubt be taken to France after having been subjected to the treatment of a taxidermist, and Parisians will gaze with awe and wonder upon this evidence of Bernhardt's prowess.

The development of Seattle is one of the wonders of the Northwest. A manager who played there recently says: "Seattle is undoubtedly the best theatrical city in that part of the country, although its population is but 80,000. The place is growing with remarkable rapidity and it is destined to become before many years the most important city on the Pacific Coast."

Louis Francis Brown, who is in New York managing the Borton Holmes lectures, which are a strong Lenten attraction, has also formed a directorial connection with the Stude-baker Theatre in Chicago. The Studebaker is one of the most benutiful, as it is also one of the most dignified, structures devoted to music and drama in this country. Its surroundings in the Fine Arts Building provide an altogether unique atmosphere. Such an institution in New York would make an ideal home for an endowed or national

The Children's Theatre that has been established at the Carnegie Lyceum is an assured success and it bids fair to be a permanent institution. Performances are given only on Saturday afternoons now, but they are largely attended. The Forest Ring has met with special favor, and Mr. Sargent is deluged, I am told, with manuscripts of plays written for juvenile spectators.

This new development in local theatricals is well worth study by authors and actors. It is likely to spread to other cities in the course of time.

Plays for children are not a new thing. Many have been written by French dramatists and produced in Paris, but the idea of a permanent children's theatre is wholly new.

The Herold answers, with its oft repeated xplanation of its view of the relation of the press toward public amusements the complaint of a correspondent that its reviews of opera nights contain full accounts of the social gathering in the auditorium and give a description of the costumes displayed, but provide little technical criticism of the opera itself. And then it goes on to say:

Let us say Madame Melon is on the stage singing Faust very charmingly, and Madame X is in her box in a new costume that is very When the Herald says that Madame Melba was in fine voice and was a delightful Marguerite does not that really tell all that is to be told of the diva's famous and familiar Is there any necessity of indulging in pedantic talk about crescendos and diminuendos and allegro vivaces and mezzo-voces, and all the other fol de roi stock parases of would be learned critics? But Madame X's costome is quite a novel affair, something as lovely in its way as the music, but wholly new and unfamiliar, and hence a description of this latest creation of the dressmaker's art is interesting. After all, is not an epera mere of a society than a nausical event, patronized as a tribute to fashion rather than as a school of music, where the earnest student is lonely and the men and women of society touch elbows with hundreds of their set?

This editorial explanation requires no comment. It speaks for itself. But it is a superfluous explanation so far as readers of the Herald are concerned, although it accentuates the singular attitude which that paper assumes toward music and the drama.

An item of news about some trifling managerial move of a Syndicate speculator is worth a lot of space in the Herald and a 'scare-head," precisely as Madame X.'s gown Mr. Pach writes in reference to my observa- is more important than the interpretation of

Is it strange that artists and intelligent persons among the public have ceased to expect guidance or information in musical and theatrical matters from some of our daily newspapers?

INDIAN ACTORS AT THE GARDEN.

A company of Offbway Indians presented, e Sportsmen's Show in Madison Square to the Sportsmen's Snow in Madison Square Gar-den last wek, L. O. Armstrong's dramatic arrangement of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha," under title of Hiawatha or Nanabozho. The eastern end of the Garden was transformed into an immense stage that showed, apparently, the rising ground on either side of a river and in centre a knoll with an Indian camp. A beautiful drop pictured a valley in splendid perspective, and a pool of real water with reaccinces represented the river. The Indians, who had acted the play before in Canada, gave it in their own tongue, but librettos were distributed and the story was easily followed. The performance was unique and most picturesque. The players made no effort to be stagy, but went through their work in a splrit of nuch sincerity and with perfect realism. The chief incidents of the poem story were shown practically all in pantonime, for, owing to the great size of the Garden, their volces could seldom be heard. Yet it was all easy to understand and all highly effective. The cast was as follows: Hiawatha, Kah sie qua We Ne Ne; Minnehalia, Wabeno; Pau Puk Keewis, Kabiboneka, Chibiabos, Medjekewis; Kwasind, Shawondisse; Iageo, Wabun; Nokemis, Wa Be Quek Ko Se. The attendance at the show was enermous.

THE STANHOPE-WHEATCROFT MATINES.

On Thursday afternoon, at the Madison Scheatre, the pupils of the Stanhope-When On Thursday, Theatre, the pupils of the Str Dramatic School appeared public Dramatic School ap

Dramatic School appeared publicly for the second time this season. The audience was very large and it included a number of persons well known in the dramatic and iterary professions. All of the students who appeared have been under instruction in the school only since the beginning of the Autumn term, and it must be said at once that nearly all of them showed considerable and striking improvement over their work in the first matinee of the year.

The programme consisted of four one act plays of which the first to be presented was Withered Leaves, considered either as a drama or as a piece of literature for reading purposes, is utterly worthless, although it has been acted time and again by reputable companies here and abroad. It proved useful, in the performance, only to accentuate, by contrast, the merits of the other plays in the bill. The story concerns an impossible young man, who has quarrefed with his impossible father, and the impossible value, and who has quarrefed with his impossible father, and the impossible young wife. s in the bill. The story concerns an in young man, who has quarreled with hi ble father, and the impossible young wif possible young man, who has quarreled with his suppossible father, and the impossible young wife of the old man, who, by strategy, brings the father and sen together again. Meanwhile a pair of dismal lovers, separated by an impossible villain, work around to the inevitable reconciliation in a highly improbable fashion. The plot is entirely too weak to bear the load of bad dialogue, crude-construction and hopeless bathos that is heaped upon it, and it officied the students but little opportunity to display whatsoever talents they may be possessed of. The cast was as follows:

dieton, proved himsen to be one particular good voice and considerable dramatic temperal ment. The others in the cast were quite submerzed by the silliness of their several roles. The second play, Hatlowe'er, and Crindle light, by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short, came like a hardy flower of early Spring after the rustling of the withered leaves was over with. It is a short, compact, stirring little drama of the Rove butienney period. The scene is a handsemen furnished room in the house of Rufus Endlecti a Boston Tory. As the curtain rises the cursid door is burst open, and Boyd Warren, a patric soldier, who is being pursued by the British soldiers, rushes in. He secretes himself behind great clock beside the fireplace. Persis, the your daughter of Endicott, comes down the stair wards and partic on the stair was daughter of Endicott, comes down the stair was great clock beside the fireplace. Persis, the young thoughter of Endicott, comes down the stair with a lighted coulde to practice, at midnight the mysterious rites of Hallowicen. Boyd, who be fore the war was her sweetheart, comes from his hiding pince, and Persis, seeing now in him only an enemy to England, makes him prisoner at the point of her father's ride. While Endicott goes to the guard-house for assistance, Persis is made to realize the nobility of Boyd, and as the British soldiers, with Endicott leading them, should for soldiers, with Endicott lending them, shout for admittance at the front door, Persis and Boy escape together through a side passage. The cast was as follows:

C Wilfred Chagnon Immes Musgrove Willard McKegney Jaura Lemmers Beyd Warren Bufus Endicott ...

Wilfred Chagnon noted the role of the coaial soldier with energy and a certain author often found in the work of students. I ont often found in the work of students. Laura Lemmers was attractive and sincere as Persist and James Musgrove was an excellent Endicott. Jerome K. Jerome's old and much admired little play, Earbara, was next presented, and in exery respect the performance of it was far better than of any of the other plays of the afternoon. It was beautifully staged and every role was in capable hands. Charliy G. Finney, as Parbara, displayed admirable and well-trained talents. She was sympathetic, true in her expression of the was remtions, and graceful as might be Don D. Our played Cecil in an earnest, manly fashion that was very attractive. Hartwell Sleigh br ught out cleverly the quaint and humorous character istics of old Finnicum, and Maude Wycherley was a bright, girlish Lillie.

Ibou't Send Your Wife to Camberwell, by J. Sterling Coyne, the final play of the matinee, was acted by the following cast:

M. Harcyban. Harry Maxwell

Mr. Hereybun ... Mr. Crank Mrs. Honeybun Mrs. Crank Mrs. Jewell Harry Maxwe Vivian Blackburn Marie de Guerin Randall Grace Washington

The bolsterous farce, which is yet entertaining The bolsterous farce, which is yet entertaining because of its brisk action and comical situations, was very well played indeed by the students. Harry Maxwell and Bon B. Orr were well cast in the two male roles, Vivian Blackburn was a graceful and very effective Mrs. Honeybun, and Marie de Guerin Randall and Grace Washington gave very creditable impersonations of the other two characters. The last Stanhop-Wheateroft matines of the season will be given at the Madison Square Theatre on April 18.

AT THE THEATRES.

Irving Place-Repertoire.

Last week was a very interesting week for the patrons of the Irving Place Theatre and a busy one indeed for the members of Heinrich Conried's stock company. On Monday night, March 4. Uriel Acosta was revived. Thesday night, which was Otto Ottbert's benefit night, brought the initial performance of ber Hochzeitstag, preceded by a curtain-raiser entitled Die Sittliche Forderung. On Wednesday night, while one division of the company appeared at New Haven in Minna von Barnheim, the other members of the organization presented Gespenster at the home theatre here. The rest of the week was deveted to repetitions of the bills of Tuesday and Wednesday.

Otto Orthert's popularity was proved by the large audience that witnessed his benefit per formance and showered him with appliance. The curtain-raiser the Sittliehe Fordering (The Moral Demands is a one act comedy by Otto Erich Hartlieben, att was noted by the following cast:

The play proved to be very amusing, some of its incidents and complications are original, and, as is nearly always the case with German-made plays, however light, the construction was admirable. The chief character is Hans Schmidt, a happily married lawyer, who practices very successfully in the divorce courts. So interested is he in his profession that, although he is madly in love with his wife, he entirely forgets that the day in which the action of the play takes place is the anniversary of his wedding. The wife is naturally indignant, and a quarrel results. In the excitement of the quarrel it suddenly occurs to Schmidt that conditions in his household are exactly like the conditions that exist between a husband and wife for whom he is seeking a divorce. Suspicion of his wife at once springs up in his brain. He accuses his assistant of having stolen the affections of his wife. The wife leaves the house in a storm of virtuous indignation. The assistant challenges the lawyer to fight a duel. These complications are worked up to a capital climax, and at last a very simple explanation brings about a reconciliation and a happy ending.

Murray Hill - An American Cittzen.

At the Murray Hill Theatre last evening th Henry V. Donnelly Stock company revived Mad ellin-Lucette Rybe's play, An American Citizen before an audience that almost completely filleeline Lucette Ryley's play. An American Citizen, before an audience that almost completely filled the house. The familiar drama was very nicely mounted indeed, and it was acted throughout in creditable fashlon. The slight lack of finish in last night's performance will probably not be noticeable later in the week. The parts are well cast and the play is of the sert in which the principals of the company are usually at their best. William Bramwell was an honest, manly Beresford Cruger: Walter Allen as Feter Barbury a part rather out of his regular lineacted with excellent comic effect: Thomas L. Coleman was an excellent Enorthn Brown: Charles D. Waldren neted in his usual pleasing style as Sir Humphrey Bunn; John Westley was a very good Willie Bunn, and William Redmund was a splendid Otto Stroble. Dorothy Bonnelly added another to her long list of successes in the role of Beatrice Carew, and Mrs. Thomas Barry, Virginia Bussell, Laura Hope Crews, and Frances Starr played the other female roles very acceptably indeed. Next week, A Temperance Town.

American The Banker's Daughter.

Bronson Heward's fine old domestic drama. The Banker's baughtet, was creditably revived by the Stock company at the American last night A large audience approved the performance and the selection of the play. Jame Kennark handled the difficult character of Lillian Westbrook fairby well. Georgia Welles was vivacious and played the role of Florence St. Vincent Browne with all the breeziness of manner that was required. Star The Bowery After Dark.

The Bowery After Park is the Star's current idl. A very large undience was present last evening, because kerry Metovern, the pugilist, was the star of the company. Mr. Metovern was east as himself, "the Bowery boy," consequently his role was not a difficult one. Of the netors in the cast, Harry Walters made the biggest hit in a Yiddish character. May court ney was a good tough soubrette; Emma Curren piayed the hetothe pleasingly, and J. E. Mittern and Frank Montgomery were artent villains. Fred Herzeg and Aimée Losse also are entitled to mention. Specialties were sprung by May courtney, Harry Walters and Louise bempsey. The play is of the most larid order. Next week, The Convict's Daughter.

Third Avenue-Heart of the undike.

At the Third Avenue Theatre at evening The Heart of the Klondike was ated. The play is written around incides that take piace in the gold fields of the K eake, and the four scenes were all pictures of that locality. Frank Hilton enacted the role of the old miner, Joseph McCutcheon, in rugged, but warm hearted fashion. William cottell was fair as Mottimer Drew, while in the character of Maudy Wilson, Evelyn Knapp was highly amusing. Others who were competent were Frances Florida as Olga, Caroline McLean as Beatrice Wall, and bell Knott as Hard Luck Wilson. The scene showing the Stute Mine, with the slince at work, was the most effective. Next week The Tide of Life.

personny in sean productions, and nearly all of the dramatic critics of standing on the New York press. The theatre managers of this city, to whom the lecture would have been a revention as well as a valuable lesson, were conspicuous by their absence.

Henrich Conried, of German birth and German training, the only manager in this city capable of talking upon the subject of the drama—except, perhaps, Jacob Adler, of the Yiddish theatre in the Bowery—addressed, authoritatively, an audience of English speaking theatre folk upon the artistic side of the theatre. In the course of his lecture birector conried said:

"I am sorry that in America I never hear the theatre spoken of in connection with education. The American, apparently, goes to the theatre for amusement only. After the play is over he does not care to discuss it. The German theatregger, on the contrary, wants to take something home with him. He considers the play itself, stripped of its securic embellishments. He thinks upon the play, argues its logic with the people of his circle, critiches it, and praises or condemns it. That is the foundation of the importance and strength of the German theatre.

"Gur subsidized theatres make this dignified position of the drama possible, in our sandificaman towns the manager of the subsidized theatre is obliged to produce drama and coundyonly. In the cities, where the subsidy is larger, he must also produce grand opera. The government furnishes the theatre building, and provides for the expense of heating and lighting it, in some cases a sum of money is given each year to aid in the expense of heating and lighting it, in some cases a sum of money is given each year to aid in the expense of heating and lighting it, in some cases a sum of money is given each year to aid in the expense of heating and lighting it, in some cases a sum of money is given each year to aid in the expense of heating and coundries, and the subsidized theatres are obliged to sign countries to change the building the post one must be firsted by t "In the company at the Berg Theatre there are eighty-four players, thirty-dive orchestra men, twelve band men for use on the stage, forty stage hands, three scenic artists, nine electricians, twenty-one carpenters, and more than one hundred persons to attend to the cleaning and various menial duties. There are carriages owned by the theatre for taking the players to and from their homes for rehearsals and performances, and each player has a separate dressing room and a servant of his own.

"The stage of the theatre is supplied with every mechanical contrivance possible to obtain. A quarter of a million dellars was expended in putting in a system by which any part of the stage may be raised or lowered by simply pressing a key of an instrument like a typewriter. In charging the scenes the front part of the stage sinks down and is moved to the back, while the back part of the stage, upon which the new scene is set, rises, and is moved forward to the front. The mechanical department of the theatre is marvelous.

"After a new play is decided upon the parts are distributed, and with his part each player receives drawings of his costumes. The players are allowed to criticise the costumes and make suggestions, and these criticisms and suggestions are duly considered by the director before the making of the costumes is begun, one week after the parts have been distributed the company, including all the mechanics, is called together for a reading. Each actor is required to indicate by this first reading how he intends to play the role. Arguments are encouraged between the players and the stage. together for a reading. Each actor is required to indicate by this first reading how he intends to play the role. Arguments are encouraged between the playets and the stage-manager for the sake of reaching the best possible conclusion upon every point. The next week rehearsals are held with the complete equipment of scenery, accessories, and properties, and in these rehearsals the players are required to actually act their parts. For this reason it is not necessary to 'try the production on a dog.' There are never less than six rehearsals, and never more than ten. At the final rehearsal all of the members of the company not playing in the piece and the representative of the Emperor are present. Their approval suffices, without further test of the play. At the public performances there are no curtain calls, and no actor would dare acknowledge in any way the applause of the audience.

In America, it seems to me, scenic embellishment is accepted in niou of dramate strength in the plays themselves. Americans are very easily satisfied. They never think of accuracy—never demand accuracy. In the Maude Adams production of L'Aglon, for example, electric lights were used in the trees of the garden scene, when

RS' CHURCH ALLIANCE NEWS.

During the Lenten season no receptions nor social entertainments are being held by the New York chapter of the Alliance. The regular services will, of course, continue, and the next one will be held at Central Park Eaptist Church, in East Eighty-third street, between Second and Third avenues, on Sunday evening, March 17. at eight o'clock. The Rev. H. M. Warren, D. D. rector of the church, will probably preach the sermon. In April the regular series of the country are daily coming in closer contact with the people of the stage, and already the members of the dramatic profession are reaping the benefits of the Alliance, in equal proportion as the church is gaining a wider knowledge and appreciation of the drama. Recently Alliance chaplains have been called upon to officiate at the funerals of two members of the profession. The Rev. Edwin Lee Tanner, once an actor and now rector of Calwary Church. Homer, N. Y. read the services for the dead, last Monday, over the body of Trillman Johnson, who was a member of the Spooner company at the Park Theatre, in Brooklyn. The week before, at York, Pa., the Rev. Charles James Wood chaplain of the Hener Myers Bramatic Company.

William owen, now touring in the West at the head of his own company, delivered an address upon the work of the Alliance at 8t. Mark's Church. Fort Dodge, Iowa, on Feb. 20. The congregation was large and the words of the speaker were listened to with deep interest. In part he said: "The stage is the last profession to which charity has been extended. And yet her work is not unlike that of the church. The church shows man what he is. The Alliance is an organization for the purpose of promoting the spiritual interests of actors, and to do away with the Sunday performance and the immoral play. As for immoral plays, to the credit of the press be it said that it has excited such strong sentiment against them that they practically cannot exist. If the Alliance can create in ma actor the feeling of self-reliance that the public is back of him and sympathizes w

ALICE NIELSEN TO LEAVE PERLEY.

At the close of her Spring senson in London Alice. Nielsen will leave Frank I. Perley, who for three sensons has managed her and the opera company bearing her name, and next senson she will be under other management. The company, however, will remain practically intact, but its name will be changed to the Williams and Perley Opera company, the managers being Mr. Perley and Thomas Williams, of San Francisco, who has been the pecuniary sponsor of Miss Nielsen's tours. The company will have a new prima donna, whose name has not been made public. The Singing Girl and The Fortune Teller will remain in the company's repertoire, as Mr. Perley holds the rights to both operas. A new opera will also be produced.

pany's repertoire, as Mr. Perley holds the rights to both operas. A new opera will also be produced.

For some time past there have been vague rumers of discord in the Alice Nielsen company, so that the news given above did not come altogether as a surprise. Since Miss Nielsen left The Bostonians and was made a star by Mr. Perley, she has won an unusual success. That much of this is due to Miss Nielsen's ability is true, but a large pertion of it is also attributable to her environment. Her company has been of unsurpassed excellence, and the meantings of her operas have been on a scale of magnificence never before known. Every detail that an able manager could discern has been that the Alice Nielsen company stands first among the first light opera organizations of this country. From the stories that have appeared concerning the rupture in the company, it would seem that Miss Nielsen has outgrown her surroundings, so to speak, and desires to continue her career under other auspices. No definite anouncement of her plans has been made.

Mr. Perley will also produce next season The chaperons, a new musical comedy, and may also produce Massenet's Cinderella.

A collection of poems by Mattie Baich Loring has recently been published by the Abbey Press, of this city, in an attractive little volume bearing the title. "The Stranger." The authoress—who, by the way, is the mother of Mildred Loring (Mrs. Bobert Brout)—covers a wide field of pectic fancy in the thirty odd poems contained in the book. She has evidently written only when under the spell of inspiration. None of the poems show signs of "hack work." Each of them seems to be the offspring of a clear, intense, all-consaming thought or emotion. The iyric entitled "Night in New Mexico" is full of atmosphere, and must appeal to the Western boom as surely as "In Daffodil Time" should reach the hearts of those familiar with the North of England. The poems are all well put together technically, and all possess originality and charm of imagination.

From a lecture by Henry Austin Adams on "The Theatre," before the Catholic Winter School, New Orleans.

These kinds of piays are in no sense true, educational or even remotely representative of what they profess to show us. They have no synthesis of the view of life which the ethics of the piay demand, and they violate the dramatic influences at work in our midst. Are we to rest supine? Are we to demand a regeneration of the stage, or are we to allow a Syndicate of soulless, greedy capitalists who control the theatres to inflict upon us what they please, and deny us what we want and for which we mere ready to pay our good money? Must we perforce go back to early drama and tragedy and comedy, and be satisfied with our immortal Shakespeare, or with Sheridan, or with Oliver Goldsmith?

George Fuller Golden led the march with his latest monologue and got away with his usual hit to the strength of which was added wild enthusiasm about him personally as the president of the Rats. It seemed as if everybody in the house knew all about the Rats war and sided heartly with the battling artists. Tom Lewis and Sam J. Ryan contributed their excuedating sketch that went hillariously, of course, the especial scoring being done by a parody vives for their familiar. I Took the Heart's case and chained the fines. But the manager took the macy and we haven't seen him since "to read "for the anatogress took the file of the manager took the macy and we haven't seen him since "to read "for the anatogress took the bought down the sympathetic fines with the fants case and chained the index with mighty applause. Charles he can with a fact to the file of the week being when Mr. Grapewin life of the glass to his left hand and didn't dare to make the file of the glass to his left hand and didn't dare to make the singht again. Dorothy Morton was highly successful in some most happly selected and charmingly rendered songs. Bert Coote and company offered A Supper for Two with the customary Joyousness, honors being fairly shared by the young woman of the cast, who gave a capital performance, aithough her name did not appear or the bills. Mr. Coote was as impossibly ludicrous as ever and the act was a continual laugh. A tharles Mayne and Anna Caldwell scored the same old hit in George M. Cohan's To Eoston on Business, which seems to grow even funnier by repetition. Bobby Gaylor rattled off his regulation Irish comedy with great success. Georgia Gardner and Joseph Mandern ran in high favor with Too Many burlings, which again proves exceedingly amusing and uncomnonly well played. Zeno, Carl and Zeno did their fine bar act to much appliase, little Carl putting in some new trapeze work at the finish that carned an ovation. Eleanor Falk and her Eight Pansies (erstwhile "Eight Lilies") went nicely, only, if the "lilies" are to be known henceforth as "pansies, it might be fair to repaint the present lily scenery, which seems a bit out of key. But the "lilies" by any other name go just as well. Other big scorers were Carrie Graham, the American Quartette, John W. Early, and Rixford Brothers. The bill was closed by a new Kiralfy bullet, The Birth of the Flowers, in which Agnes Mahr made a pronounced hit in some very clever and exceptionally neat grotesque toe dancing. Rose Edythe assisted ably in conventional ballet work, but the other duncers were hardly up to the mark, and the way in which they were permitted to walk on and off as they pleased rather spoiled the picture. Business was simply enormous, standing room was at a premium, and one attendant Bart, who remarked that people were hanging from the chandeliers hardly exaggerated it. Sam Bernard acted as manager for his brother Rats.

KEITH'S UNION Square.—M. B. Curtis, assisted by Albina De Mar, played Herbert Hall

Rat. who remarked that people were hanging from the chandeliers hardly exaggerated it. Sam Bernard acted as manager for his brother Rats.

Keffir's Union Square.—M. B. Curtis, assisted by Albina De Mar, played Herbert Hall Winslow's sketch, Sam'l at the Herald Square Hotel, for the first time here and did not set the house on fire. The sketch is none too good, only brightening up in random spots, and it has a very weak and hopeless finish. Mr. Curtis impersonated two brothers of the Hebrew hrew, one fairly well, and the other with an unsightly make up that was most uncomfortable to see. Miss Pe Mar acted a French woman with considerable skill and vivacity and wore some amazing gowns. The series of Art Studies were continued with the customary popularity, one or two new tableaux adding to the show of favor. Once more the pictures in which real animals posed stole away the chief applause. Willis P. Sweatnam made a very large-sized hit with a wonderfully clever monologue, nearly all brand new. None of the countless persons, however clever, that has tried to imitate Mr. Sweatnam's irresistibly comic style has ever gotten within ten miles of it, and it must be pleasing to one of his originality to know that he has developed something that needs no copyright to prevent its being copied. Mande Courtney, the sweet singer of the songs our mothers sang, earned no end of applause for her charming net. She opened with "When the Birds to North Again," one of the prettlest ballads of the season, followed with her old songs, and wound up with a new song that only went because she sang it. There is no daintier, more graceful act in vandeville than hers and audiches are quick to let her know they think so, too. Johnson and Dean made a hit in their songs and dunces, Hale and Francis did pleasing club swinging and hoop-rolling, the Empire Comedy quartette entertained in good old quartette fashion, the Haidabura Family danced cleverly, and Lores Grimm offered some very unhappy juvenile specialties rather on the order of Chamile Ro

Business, good.

Tony Paston's.—Cawthorne and Forrester led the dance in their familiar sketch. A Damage Suit, which drew forth its accustomed share of approbation. Lew Sully made his Pastor debut and at once established himself as a favorite with the clien.s. His black-face monologue is hugely funny, the material is nearly all good, and his rapid style of work is not excelled by any one in his field. Especially popular were his parodies, which contained many bright lines and were sung with keenest humor. Hickey and Nelson scored an immense hit in their grotesque acrobatic act which returned to greater applause even than on its first appearance here. Mr. Hickey's long-chance acrobatics and his capital make-up came in for hearty indorsement. Petching Brothers put in a neat musical comedy turn that went well. The principal novelties are an arbor covered with roses that turn out to be sweet-toned belis, and a row of potted plants that develop into an octave of electric bells. John Lettlair juggled admirably, as he always does: Josie and Willie Barrows were pleasing in songs and dances; Sophie Burnham sang tunefully, and the rest were Barney and Kelly. Sisters Bernard, Hoffman and Maurice, Clifford and Hall, Saville and Stuart, Amos, and the vitagraph. Business was regulated only by the capacity.

Proctor's Twenty-therd Street.—The bill was hended by a one-act arrangement of the once popular metodrama. The Stowaway, put on by Thomas H. Pavis and played by W. H. Sadler. Pickering Brown, E. L. Irving, Joseph Mitched, Libbie Kirke, and Vigginia Russell. This affair ran about a half hour and was done three times a day. It was very, very bad. The safe-breaking scene was the one used, and, of course, this did away with the meaning of the title and whatever of merit there had been in the old pray was carefully omitted. It was almost impossible to guess what it was all about, and the acting was no better than the version. The stage-management, too, was deplorable, especially in the matter of the lights, which were bungled tremendously. The two "reformed cracksmen, Spike Hennessy and Kid McCoy," as per programme, turned out to be a double and a property man. Feople will go to wandeville to see excellent short plays like Madame Eutterly, but they are apt to steer away when confronted by such as The Stowaway. Wilmer and Vincent, capitally assisted by kenyon Bishop, offered their bright sketch, A Strange Baby, and made the hit of the bill, a particular triumph being scored by their highly intelligent small dog, who is a first-rate comedian. The Seven Reed Birds put in After the Ball and were heartily applauded. The Willis Family presented their near musical act with success. Rausche cleverly impersonated many prominent men and won a big laugh when, as Theodore Roosevelt, he ared a pistol off right and a stage hand brought in a couple of animal skins from left. He should use this bit to close the act instead of following it with a conventional impersonation of President Mekinley which is a complete let down. The Jeffersons gave a varied and pleasing act, showing smoke pictures, arrow shooting, a song, a rope trick, and a thing limp Foo imitation, all well done. Hill and Huft held over in their grotesque acrobatics. Mile, A ords were broken by the business.

Proctor's Palace.—Johnstone Bennett, assisted by Tony Williams, led the bill in A quiet Evening at Home, seen a week earlier at the Fifth Avenue. The act scored its customary success and Miss Bennett's assorted impersonations went as well as ever. A thirty-minute version of the once popular farce-comedy, The Hustler, was put on without the cast being billed and did not pan out as an especially inspired production. Davis and Wilson illustrated songs with considerable success. Smith and Fowell contributed a good coon sketch, and Soto Sunetaro offered some excellent Japanese magic. Others billed were the American Quartette, H. H. Wiesner, Chaik Saunders, the kalatechnoscope, and the travel views.

scope, and the travel views.

PROCTOR'S 125TH STREET.—A short arrangement of The Irish Alderman was presented by a first-rate cast including W. L. Gleason, Free Eichter, Harry Gilbert, C. H. Burroughs, H. G. Kenrney, Laura Russell, Gilbertie Learock, Mynee Burroughs, Lucy Saunders and Clara Gillette. It went very well indeed, and the work of the players was applauded. Gertrude Mansfield and Caryl Wilbur repeated their down town hit of the preceding fortnight in A Bird and a Bottle. Ivan Tschernoff's dogs showed off as successfully as during the week before at the Twenty-third Street, and the other numbers were Raymond and Kurkamp, Burt Sisters. Ramsdell and Arnold, May Casta, the travel views, and the kalatechnoscope.

New York—The Gidde, Thrang, with Adde

New York.—The Giddy Throng, with Adele Ritchie replacing Lady Francis Hope, After office Hours and interpolated vaudeville, entertained very large audiences. Miss Ritchie scored a decided success in her new role and was well received. Improvements are being made daily in the burlesques and people are going again and again to see the bill at the low prices asked. Carl Marwig's new bullet, The March of Old Glory, proved an attractive feature.

Weber and Field's.—The usual crowds filled the little theatre all the week and enjoyed the stock company's work in Fiddle Dec Dec and the accompanying burlesques. The bill is one of the best ever shown at this famous playhouse and is drawing accordingly.

Hurrig and Seamon's—The Orpheum Show held this Harlem house and drew large crowds. In the fine bill were the Newsky Troupe, Severus Shaffer, Cressy and Dayne, Johnson, Davenport and Lorella, Jack Norworth, William Weston and Ella Herbert.

The Burlesque Houses.

FRIIZ WILLIAMS AI WEBER AND FIELDS.

Weber and Flelds have made arrangements by which Fritz Williams will be a member of their stock burlesque company next season, he being loaned to the music hall managers by Charles Frohman. When Charles J. Ross suddenly left the Weber and Fields company a few months ago on the eve of the production of a new burlesque, Mr. Williams, who happened to be in town at the time, was secured at a moment's notice to play Mc. Ross' part and made a most notable hit. Lilliam Russell's contract with Weber and Fields will expire in the coming Spring, but assurance is given that it will be renewed, probably for an Indefinite period, since both Miss Russell and her managers are so well satisfied with present arrangements.

THE VAUDEVILLE THE

A crisis in the war between the White Rats of America and the Association of Vaudeville Managers was reached last Wednesday when occurred, at their headquarters in this city, the long talked about meeting of the members of the Eastern branch of the managers association. The managers had said that the five per cent. commission exacted by them upon making engagements and objected to by the White Rats and those in sympathy with them, would probably be abodished at this meeting, but subsequently admitted that its abolition might not go into etfect until some time in June. Then the Ratsstruck, as has been airendy told in Tink Minnow. Whether or not the managers would have discreted the commission had not the strike occurred is a matter of speculation, and, perhaps, is beside the point anyhow. Suffice it that, at inst Wednesday's meeting, when all the members of the managers association were either present or represented, it was decided to do away with the commission. It was further determined that it was unfair to discriminate against any particular performers involved in the strike, but that dealings between them and the managers shall be conducted hereafter according to individual merit, and that the White Rats, as an organization, shall not be recognized by the managers.

vidual merit, and that the White Rats, as an organization, shall not be recognized by the managers.

Thus was practically ended the foremost grievance that had been made prominent as a cause for the Rats' strike. Henry Lee, for the Rats, went to thicago and came back with an agreement signed by the Western members of the managers' association, officially recognizing the Rats as a body and consenting to accept their bookings. This, of course, was bad news to the Eastern members, who have by all accounts been on none too cheerful terms with their Western brethren for some time. It is not anneasonable to appose that there may be a split in the association, and that the Eastern and Western men will form separate bodies. Some of the managers from out of town, who came to attend the meeting, promptly went about making contracts with Rats, and these negotiations are said to have been conducted with great secrecy, the formidable documents, it is said, being written sometimes on programme margins, newspaper edges, or cuffs. The Rats were claused by what they regard as a complete victory, and they have gone gaily on with their own managerial enterprises, just to attest the sincerity of their connection that it is possible for them to live without the managers—that people do not go to the theatres to see the manager, nor yet the playbouse, but the actors, on March 6 b. F. Bennessy, manager of the local headquarters of the managers association, issued the following statement:

The question of sholishing the commission was pusitically decided in the calvass of the Eastern members.

he-indeptarters of the managers association, issued the following statement:

The question of sholishing the commission was punifically decided in the canvass of the Eastern members on Feb. 8, and so declared to the public as well as the performers, but as the action required a change in the constitution of the association, twenty days' no the was necessary before the recommendation of the board could be ratified. There has been a divided sentiment among the managers since the formation of the association respecting the wisdom of charging the commission. The action of the performers in requesting that the charge be abolished, simply crystalized and gave impetus to the feeling among many prominent members of the association, that notwithstanding the universal custom and arguments justifying the retention of the commission, it was unwise, mainly because of the hostility in the ratios of the nanagers, to continue it; and it was solely on this account that the Eastern board became a unit in calling the general meeting which occurred to-day.

The unwarranted and unjustifiable action of the performers in violating their contracts and "going on strike" in the hope that they could cripple the managers and compet them to submit to this demand leafure the date set for the meeting, and the species of intimidation upon the managers and the performers who were willing to work and serve the public, created some feeling in the minds of the members that the performers by their action had forteried the consideration which the managers had cheerfully accorded them on Feb. 8; but the sentiment of a majority was that, notwithstanding the unjust treatment of the performers, they would keep faith with the public to whom they had declared their intention to abdish the continistion.

performers, they would keep faith with the public to whom they had declared their intention to abolish the commission.

The question of commissions having been settled the next matter was a consideration of the attitude which should be taken toward the strikers. The managers feit that the performers who had gone out in the main had been missed and decelved by a few men who sought to make capital for themselves, and that there fore it would be unjust to discriminate against the performers; and a resolution was adopted providing in effect that the association should in the future deal with each individual on his merits and treat him fair by and justly.

The president called attention to the fact that some of the performers were under a misapprehension respecting the position of the association in the matter of contracts and it was felt that in justice to them it should be stated demitted and clearly that the fundamental principles of the association distinctly provide the association will make no contract with the performer; that the making of contracts is solely in the hands of each manager of the association. The association simply served the convenience of the managers and the performers in affording them an opportunity to schedule their route without delay, close their respective contracts, and this being done, the only observe as a chearing house in which the contracts made by individual managers were recorded, the commission having been paid to defray the expenses of the association in affording a joint benefit to manager and performer.

If the association were to enter into the making of contracts, it would create a nutrership intense.

association in affording a joint benefit to manager and performer.

If the association were to enter into the making of contracts, it would create a partnership interest in a partnership interest in the manager and the performer which could not and would not be entertained.

The various members reported to the president that their business was running along smoothly; that have the settled the question of commission, there was no other grievance which had any busis in fact, and the feeling was generally expressed that the managers, having kept their promise and abolished the camission, the performers would see the error of the stand they had taken. The strike having been ordered for the declared purpose only of securing the abolishment of commissions the public will now be in a no sition to determine the sincerity of their declaration. The managers were a unit in the position that no organization of the performers would be recognized, and adjourned in a spirit of enthusiasm and confidence.

To all of which George Fuller Golden, president of the Rats, replied by saying simply:

Michael Shea, manager of Shea's Garden Theatre, Euffalo, was examined in supplementary proceedings in this city on March 9, on complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, who hold a judgment for $700 against him for breach of contract. He testified that the burning of his theatre some years ago had ruined him, that he had been financially irresponsible for seven years at least, that all contracts signed by him are valueless, and that, instead of owning the theatre that bears his name, he is simply its manager on a salary of $400 a week. Most of the ca went to New York to secure new engagements. This work Shea's Garden Theatre was closed owing to their action. Fulsons Stars had been beoked nearly a year age, and when the White Rot trouble commenced Manager Shea tried to cancel, but Manager Fulsons is said to have guaranteed that his Eat actors would stand by him and play the engagement. The co. Init off here list week and claimed they would play as agreed. For safety however, Manager Shea engaged a lot of extra acts to take their places in case of strike. Both Monday and Tuesday matines performances were carried out and them Mr. Shea. feeling that he would not be touthled dismissed his duplicate performers and they left the city Tuesday afternoon. That night, after the house had been filled with a big audience and lust at time for the performance, the Rat fever broke out and he was forced to dismiss and disappoint the audience and close the house for the rest of the week. Those who backed out were the Four Huntings. Zeb and Zarrow, Polk and Kollius, Edna Collins, Kura, and the Haymans, Lillian Burkhardt, Fuller, Moller and Burke, and Macart's dogs and monkeys were ready to proceed, but could not make up for the loss of the secoders, so no bill was attempted. Charles Horwitz

Charles Horwitz is the author of the most successful sketches and monologues on the Vandeville stage. The following acts are from Mr. Horwitz's pen: "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband," for transfe Emmett and Co.; "A Stranse Roy," for Howard and Bland; Wesson and Waiters in "Her Steamy Booter"; "A Marrimon'al Substitute," for Mr. and Mrs. Gene simples; "A Royal Visitor," for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Radworth; "The Financial Question," for Rearrice Moreland; "The Mystery of the Mortgage," for Heavy E. Divey; "Ma Ambition" for Hillin Thomas, and many others. For terms on sketches, monologues, we address Calland and Mary Charles and Colors St., Chicago, Ill.

Several profty new drops have been painted and the stage settings are brightened up. The ushers and at taches are in uniforms, and everything possible is done to make the audience feel comfortable and at home. The chief feature was the Marcel art tableaux, which are away shend of anything of the kind seen here before. Toront, Kalme, Matthe Leekette, Edsall and Berths, Mr. and Mrs. Kenton, and the kalatechnescope all scored.

F. C. CAMPIDELL.

Show and Co., managers: Augustus Cook, in a Napodeonic sketch, was the chief headling 4-9, and was effective. John Mayou and co., in The Man Upsteirs, were leading fun nakers, Mart Reagan, as Bricket, being the hit of the cast. Adele Purvis Ouridis some wonderful balancing. Other features were the Two Luciers, Rhaney Comedy Four, Tom Brown, the Browning Sisters, M. Fun, Wood and Ray, For 11-9: Gentred Haynes, Ethande, George and Adelaide Ober, and Mollie Thompson. All Diffordill M. Cames Barry and Co., managers): The White Rarshad the run of the house 4-9 and put up a good bill George-Alexander, the musical holo, was one of the hits, and McPhee and Hills' suppossing work on the lars another. Shenn and Warren had a funny traverty on the Vadis, and the Namoto Brothers did clever acrobatic work. Then there were Edwards, Fernell and Simmons, and Fogarty and Lavigne. IRACLEST. A. A. Grand Opera House (Graff and Shubert, managers), Jessie Bartlett Darks and Marie Wainwright were the headliners 4.9. Others were C. W. Littlefeld, Ethardo, Mon and Goodrich, Herbert and Willing, Mackie and Walker, Andrews and Feld, Secker, Wilkers and Seeker, Jr., and the kinodrome; business big, Week H. Io.; Marshall P. Wilder, Sisters of Meers, the Jacksons, Fitzgibbon, McCox, and Fitzgibbon, Westman and Wren. Sistebbias, Bedle Williams, and the kinodrome.— Dunfer (Charles P. Salisbury, manager); Edwin Milton Rode and Sellina Fetter, Leroy and Clayton, Genaro and Hughes, Herbert's dors, Nellie Nichols, and Fields and Ward, 4%; attendance good.

*Litt. W. Hockhart's clephants were the buggest and best things at the Orpheum week 4.9. The work of these animals is truly wonderful, and, Mr. Lackhart appears to improve their perfermance each vent. He has departed from all traditions in his training methods. Elephants that do cale walks on their hind feet, roll ten plus with the precision of a professional, walk forward and backward on bottles, ride bleveles and perform other difficult feats are urusual. Foy and Clark in The Spring of Youth, divide henors with the pachderms. There were other good features.
